

What are the few things I would change on the Remarkable tablet OS, device and Mac app?

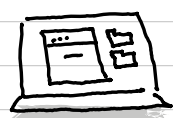

In short: Not possible to access all wifi, folio keyboard makes screen dirty, Mac app hasn't templates, no cover art when off.

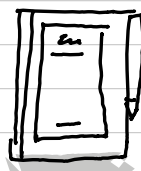

Not possible to access some Wifis

Folio keyboard makes screen dirty

No templates on Mac

No cover art when sleeping

I'm using now a refurbished Remarkable II tablet since a few months. It's now well embedded in my life and I have clarity about the few things that could make it even better for me:

Open wifi access

The wifi I have at home and work is one of those wifis that you have to open a browser window and accept the terms of service. On the Remarkable tablet I can access the wifi but that browser window can't open. So I don't get any internet access.

Folio keyboard that doesn't make the screen dirty

The folio keyboard is great for writing, especially in bumpy trains. But the way it's build makes it so that the part of the folio which touches the table (which can be dirty) then comes on the screen when you fold it back after use. So the dirty stuff ends up directly on the screen.

Choose templates also in the Mac app

I'm using now more the Remarkable app on my Mac. This allows me to start a note on my computer and then finish it later on the Remarkable tablet. One thing missing on Mac is the ability to set the template that comes behind the note. It's a small thing but it means that when I open a note then on the tablet the first thing I need to do is change the background template to "small lines" as it's the template that helps me write straight.

Cover art when off or sleeping

The Remarkable really feels like a paper notebook. But when it's off it can't show a nice cover like your real notebook shows when it's closed. That's definitely just a thing to make this tool feel more personal and not having it doesn't make it harder to use.
